Moving the Social – Journal of Social History and the History of Social Movements

Moving the Social: Journal of Social History and the History of Social Movements is an international and peer-reviewed journal dedicated to the historical study of social movements. It welcomes articles on national movements, the “old” labour movements, “new” social movements, and on contemporary global problems such as climate change, neoliberalism, the extreme right, migration, and human rights.

Convinced of the distinctive value of historical approaches to social movements, it particularly invites:

- Attempts to connect social history with the study of social movements.
- Work that links historical study with research from other disciplines, particularly the social sciences, geography, anthropology and ethnology.
- Transnational and comparative perspectives on the history of social movements.
- Historiographical and theoretical examinations of pertinent work in social history.

Moving the Social is published by Klartext publishers, one of the foremost academic publishers in Germany. The journal is the continuation of the Mitteilungsblatt des Instituts für soziale Bewegungen which has been successfully published at the Institute for Social Movements since 1977. It appears twice yearly, with one issue on a particular theme and one thematically mixed issue. Each issue includes a comprehensive review article, one of which each year is on recent publications in social movement studies.

The editors welcome proposals for future special issues and submissions of individual manuscripts.
